E. A. Dudley brought the Recorder, man a liberal sample of his Hightown peach crop, probably the largest crop gathered by any one in the county. They were of the Stump and Carmen varieties, and while not of the choice picking, were as fine of flavor and appearance as Crozet or the Cumberland Valley can produce.

Relatives and friends who find difficulty in getting letters to their boys in France are reminded again of the importance of carefully addressing their letters. It is best to write the name in full, give plainly the company and regiment, and the abbreviation, A. E. F. is not sufficient, as there is an Australian Exp. Force also, and the American letters may go there. Thus, it is well to follow a form something like this: James Henry Smith, Co. D, 318th Infantry, American Exp. Force, via New York, putting your name on the corner of the envelope. Write plainly.

It is believed that Highland will make a new record this year in her grain crop, due to increased acreage and fine yield. That the county has grown sufficient grain to bread itself is the opinion of many, and that is "going some" as compared with her previous record. Good yields are reported by the farmers and threshers. E. T. Hevener reports a crop of oats that averaged nearly 72 bu. per acre. Samuel Varner left a sample of his corn at the Recorder office Monday. The stalks measured ten feet and are well eared and maturing nicely.

AIDS IN PARCHMENT READING

Camera Used Successfully in Preserving Old Writing Now Barely Discernible.

Before the days of books parchment became so costly that economical scholars raised more or less perfectly who had been written and used them a second time. In this manner some highly interesting and valuable manuscripts have been lost to the world, says New York Herald. But in many cases the ancient characters are still visible.

It was not long ago that photography was first successfully applied for this work. The color of the faded ink of the older writing on a palimpsest is yellow. A photograph of such a manuscript was made through a yellow screen. The result was a negative on which the old writing was barely discernible, being a little darker than the background, while the later black writing appeared distinctly as white letters.

Next an ordinary negative on a bromide plate was made and from this was produced a transparent positive on which both writings appeared dark and about equally distinct. Then the transparency was superposed on the first negative so that the dark letters of the later writing covered the light letters, representing the same writing in the negative. They were thus eliminated, being indistinguishably merged with the general dark background produced by the combination of positive and negative. But the earlier characters, since they were dark in both cases, appeared in the combination intensely black and distinct.

ROOM FOR MORE DEMOCRACY

Writer of Opinion That Parents Govern Too Much by Mandate or by Exhortation.

The typical parent is not democratic in the treatment of his children. He likes to govern by mandate or exhortation. He dogmatically asserts his views on every question that arises, and insists that he knows more than his children, and he has no respect for their "notions." One can listen to a parent telling his thirteen-year-old boy what kind of a cap he must wear and how and when he must wear it, though the boy says "the boys will sneer" at him, and he does not want to be "the goat" of the crowd. But the parent will listen to no argument; he says he knows better than the boy what the latter ought to do, and he does not care what the boy thinks.

Much of the conflict between parents and children is due to the fact that the former do not recognize the right of the latter to express opinions contrary to those of the parent on any question or problem whatsoever. One can hear such a parent say: "I will teach you to obey. When your opinions are wanted, I will ask for them," and so on.

A parent who is a bully never can get an insight into his children's thoughts about conduct and so he can never know what sport is to be a parent.—M. V. O'Shea in The Mother's Magazine.

District Conference

The 48th session of the Moorefield District Conference convened at the Monterey Methodist church Tuesday night, Sept. 3rd and has been an occasion of social enjoyment and spiritual uplift. Rev. G. W. Richardson, presiding elder, is the presiding officer, and W. W. White, of Moorefield, was chosen as secretary.

The roll call showed 53 preachers and laymen present, and there are 35 visitors from the more remote section of the district. This attendance of delegates is below the estimate made prior to the meeting of conference, the committee on entertainment having provided homes for something like 110.

The opening sermon on Tuesday night was preached by Rev. G. H. Fielding of Piedmont, and at 11 Wednesday morning a sermon was preached by Rev. H. V. Wheeler, of Cumberland. All necessary committees were appointed at the morning session.

A memorial to the annual conference for a change of name from Moorefield to Cumberland district elicited some warm discussion and was finally laid on the table until the next session of the conference.

Rev. H. B. Sherman, who represents the cause of "Ministerial supply, and training, and the Centenary movement," arrived Wednesday evening and occupied the pulpit Thursday morning. At the Wednesday evening service, 8:30, Rev. E. W. Aaron preached from the text "What is man that Thou art mindful of him."

The conference will probably close to-night.

RAISING FOXES IN ALASKA

Animals Are Bred There for Their Fur, and the Industry Is a Remunerative One.

There are ten or twelve fox farms in Alaska. One of them, situated in the Taanana valley, a mile and a half from Fairbanks, consists of ten acres of cleared land, the greater part of which is covered with pens in which the animals live. From a distance the fox farm looks like a huge chicken yard, with walls of woven wire and enclosures of various sizes inside. Each pen is 50 feet long, 8 feet wide and about 10 feet high. The wire is tough steel and is sunk about four feet in the ground and is then bent so that it runs inward underground for about two feet to prevent the foxes from digging out. At the top the wire has an overhang of two feet to prevent the foxes from climbing over. Each pen has a kennel made of boards, like a dog kennel, the entrance to which is a chute or a wooden pipe a foot square. Only one pair of foxes live in each pen. They are very timid and have to be handled carefully. Most of the fox farmers will not allow strangers to enter their property for fear they will frighten the animals. The foxes are fed with salmon, moose meat, horse meat, rabbits, carrots and turnips. A common feed is rice and rabbits cooked together in a stew.

Saints at Earthly Courts.

They tell a tale of two great saints at court, one a Dominican, one a Franciscan. The king of France had the honor to entertain the angel of the schools at dinner, once upon a time. Never a word spoke he, nor morsel ate. His eyes were fixed on the opposite wall, while his mind followed out a train of thought to its conclusion; then followed a mighty thump on the table and an exclamation: "Now that is conclusive against the Manicheans!" St. Bonaventura sat at such a banquet, gazing intently upon the queen. The king said: "Good Brother Bonaventura, what thinkest thou?" To whom the Franciscan said: "Ah, sire, I think, if the beauty of an earthly monarch be so great, what must be the beauty of the Queen of Heaven!"

Mental Hygiene for Defectives.

"For the first time in the history of warfare," says the New York Medical Journal, "mental hygiene as practiced among the soldiers is given the prominence it deserves, and, profiting by the experience of England and France in the present war, the surgeon general was impelled to inaugurate an elaborate organization, both in number and plan, to take care of any mental disturbances detected in the camps or among the soldiers during the war. This is a distinct innovation in the medical army work, for the subjects of the mental hygiene and of mental and nervous diseases in general as occurring among soldiers in wartime were for many reasons either slightly treated or neglected altogether."

SUGAR.

Every Day Sugar Saving in Nation And State.

There are 100,000,000 people in the United States. Suppose each one saves just one level teaspoon of sugar each day, how much will that mean? 96 level teaspoons—1 pound. Divide 100,000,000 teaspoonsful by 96 and you have: 1,041,666 2-3 lbs. saved in 1 day. 7,291,666 2-3 lbs. saved in 1 week. 31,249,999 lbs. saved in 1 month. The population of Virginia was estimated at 2,202,522 in 1917. A saving of one level teaspoonful for each person in this State would mean: 2,202,522 teaspoonfuls a day or 22, 943 pounds saved in 1 day. 160,601 pounds saved in 1 week. 668,290 pounds saved in 1 month.

ROLEY'S HONEY AND TAR stops the cough and heals lungs.

House Burned.

The residence of W. F. Jones, near Hightown, was entirely destroyed by fire about 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. It was the old Jones home, among the best and most comfortable in the county, and the loss is heavy.

The origin of the fire was in a room over the dining room where there had been no fire at all, and was probably due to a mouse or rat getting hold of a match. When discovered, the flames had gained too much headway to be dealt with and efforts were directed to the saving of the household goods on the lower floor. Much of this was accomplished, and a little two-room cottage nearby was also saved, and this furnished shelter for the family last night, and will probably be used until Mr. Jones can rebuild. Two small outbuildings in the yard were burned. We have heard no estimate of the loss, and it is one hard to estimate, every well-furnished home having treasured and valued belongings and heirlooms of special value to the immediate family.

The loss is partially covered by insurance.

S. S. HONOR ROLL

The Monterey Methodist Sunday school has revised its honor roll, a few names overlooked and others going lately, being added.

It is needless to say that the purpose of the school, and Mrs. Bishop who personally looked after the matter, was to omit no names, for the school and church are proud of the boys that have gone to offer their all in defense of humanity. The roll contains the names of fourteen, and, as nearly as possible, have been entered in the order of their call:

Carl Sullenberger
E. K. Samples
Miller Bishop
Elbert Gum
John E. Slaven
Henderson Bishop
Billy Jones
